

IMPROVING THE UNIFORM CPA EXAMINATION

INVITATION TO COMMENT QUESTIONNAIRE

OCTOBER 2007

The AICPA Board of Examiners (BOE) is embarking on a multi-year project to improve the Uniform CPA Examination. The contemplated changes are outlined in the questionnaire that follows. Detailed explanations are provided in the attached “Improving the Uniform CPA Examination” document. Please take the time to read this document before you complete the questionnaire.

At its September 14-15, 2007 meeting, the BOE authorized the AICPA Examinations Team to begin work on the project but also requested input from State Boards of Accountancy and other interested parties prior to finalizing its decision. The scope of the project is outlined in the Executive Summary on page 1 of the “Improving the Uniform CPA Examination” document. Your response to the questionnaire is essential in order to ensure that CPA Examination improvements are made in concert with the needs and preferences of stakeholders.

Questionnaire Completion Instructions: Please read about each planned improvement and respond by indicating your position on the scale provided. Include comments, especially if you do not support the described initiative. If you need more space to comment, please attach additional sheets. Please return all pages of the completed questionnaire, beginning with page 2 (the respondent’s page).

1. Continue the development of Task-Based Simulations (TBS)

(Improving the Uniform CPA Examination, page 1, item 1; “Task-Based Simulations,” page 3-4)

Description:
Task-based simulations are short independent simulations.
Rationale:
<ul style="list-style-type: none">• The use of TBS is a pre-requisite for faster and more predictable score release.• The use of TBS allows for broader sampling of content and skills within a section of the Examination.

Question: How strongly do you support an initiative to implement task-based simulations?

2. Introduce Task-Based Simulations (TBS) at the same time as the practice analysis results are introduced.

(Improving the Uniform CPA Examination, page 1, item 2; “Risk Factors Impacting Decisions” and the benefits of introducing changes in one release vs. multiple releases over time, pages 7-8)

Description:
Coordinate the implementation of task-based simulations with the implementation of the practice analysis results.
Rationale:
<ul style="list-style-type: none">• The introduction of TBS and the results of the practice analysis will require communications to candidates and state boards. Introducing them concurrently would allow all communications about changes to be addressed in a single communications effort.• Concurrent introduction ensures that the content of the TBS’s is aligned with the new practice analysis.

Question: How strongly do you support the introduction of task-based simulations and the results of the practice analysis concurrently?

3. Begin the administration of simulations in BEC by consolidating the administration of essay questions in the BEC section at the same time as the practice analysis results are introduced.

(Improving the Uniform CPA Examination, page 1, item 3; “Written Communication Simulations in BEC,” page 4; “Risk Factors Impacting Decisions” and the reasons for introducing changes at the same time, pages 7-8)

Description:
Consolidate written essay questions into BEC. Remove essay questions from the other sections (AUD, FAR, REG).
Rationale:
<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Consolidating the essay questions into one section will provide for faster score reporting.• Consolidating the essay questions into one section will allow for a single communication update to candidates and state boards.• Consolidating the essay questions into one section will help contain costs.• Removing essay questions from AUD, FAR, and REG will allow for the administration of additional task-based simulations in those sections.

Question: How strongly do you support the consolidation of the written essay questions into one section of the Exam (BEC)?

Please check one of the following:

4. If stakeholders are amenable to objective assessment of communication skills, investigate the feasibility of such assessments for the CPA Exam and, if appropriate, incorporate them into the operational Exam at a future point.

(Improving the Uniform CPA Examination, page 1, item 4; “Testing Written Communication in the Future,” page 5)

Description:
Investigate ways to incorporate objective assessment of communication skills into the CPA Exam.
Rationale:
<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Objective assessment of communication skills will contribute to a reduction in score reporting time and scoring costs.• Objective assessment can broaden the range of communication skills assessed

Question: How strongly do you support an initiative to investigate the use of objective assessment of communication skills to replace essay questions?

Comments:

5. Introduce additional TBS in BEC when objective assessment of communication is introduced to replace essay questions.
(Improving the Uniform CPA Examination, page 1, item 5; “Other Simulations in BEC,” page 5-6)

Description:
Add simulations (testing other than communication skills) to BEC when objective assessment of communication skills is introduced to replace essay questions
Rationale:
<ul style="list-style-type: none">• BEC simulations would provide a greater range of testing options for the section.• BEC simulations would be developed on the basis of 2008 Practice Analysis findings with respect to the skills most appropriately assessed in BEC.

Question: How strongly do you support the introduction of additional TBS in BEC when objective assessment of communication is introduced to replace essay questions?

6. Maintain the current test administration schedule.

(Improving the Uniform CPA Examination, page 1, item 6; “Testing Windows,” page 6)

Description:
---------------------	--

The current test administration schedule is two months of testing followed by a month in which the test is not administered.
--	--

Rationale:
-------------------	--

- | | |
|--|--|
| <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Continuous testing may limit the ability to release scores faster and will increase the time needed to pretest items.• There may be unintended consequences to changing the test administration schedule. Without a deadline at the end of a window, candidate volumes may decline and candidates may wait too long to test.• Changing the test administration schedule would require significant systems changes and potentially increased costs.• The CBT Exam is currently available eight months of the year (six days a week) as compared to only twice a year previously with the paper Exam. | |

Question: How strongly do you support maintaining the current test administration schedule?

Please check one of the following:

7. Once the statistical properties and content of the new Exam are known, investigate possible reductions in total testing time.

(Improving the Uniform CPA Examination, page 1, item 7; “Length of Examination,” page 6)

Description:
Maintain the current total testing time until more is known about the new Exam.
Rationale:
<ul style="list-style-type: none">• The current Exam length was designed to ensure that the Exam met or exceeded quality standards with regard to statistical properties.• The impact of planned improvements on the statistical properties of the Exam is not yet known.

Question: How strongly do you support maintaining the current total test length until more is known about the statistical properties and content of the new Exam?
